DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed.
2. The specification has not been checked to the extent necessary to determine the presence of all possible minor errors. Applicant's cooperation is requested in correcting any errors of which applicant may become aware in the specification.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 1-2, 11, and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Nakane et al. U.S. Patent Number 6,928,887.

Regarding claim 1, 11, 13, Nakane et al., disclose a torque sensor with features of the claimed invention including a first rotary shaft and a second rotary shaft are disposed on a common axial line coupled together by a torsion bar, and which detects tensional torque applied between them, the sensor comprising:

Art Unit: 2855

magnetic field generating means that generates a magnetic field in the radial direction around the common axial line; a magnetic field varying means that varies, in response to the relative rotation between the shafts, and magnetic sensor means to detects the magnetic flux, and generates an output signal whose polarity changes in response to the direction of the detected magnetic flux (col. 5, line 13), and whose magnitude changes in response to the magnitude of the detected magnetic flux (see claim 1).

Regarding claim 2, Nakane et al., shows ring shaped permanent magnet.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 2-5, 9-10 and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nakane et al..

Regarding claims 3-4, and 10, 12, Nakane et al., does not show a plurality of magnet. But instead he shoes a multipolar magnet, which in practice act as plural magnet. For such similarity, it would have been obvious for a skilled artisan at the time of the invention to modify his device to provide for a plurality of magnets in order to have more handle to the structure and to be able to fine tune the system and therefore, to provide more accurate results.

Regarding claim 5, Naked shows a first and second outer cylinders (elements 14 and 15).

Art Unit: 2855

Regarding claim 9, the magnetic sensor is fixed.

7. Claims 6-8, are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

8. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

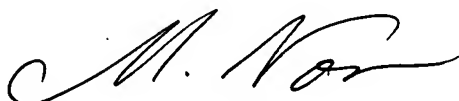

9. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Max H. Noori whose telephone number is (571) 272-2185. The examiner can normally be reached on Tuesday-Friday from 8:00 AM to 6:00 P.M.
